PLATO 2020 Conference
Celebrating Ten Years

CALL FOR PRESENTATIONS

Ethics in Schools, Communities, and the Public Sphere

June 26-27, 2020
University of California - San Diego
San Diego, CA

CONFERENCE THEME:
The conference, celebrating PLATO’s tenth anniversary, will focus on ethics – in schools, the university, communities and the public sphere, and across the lifespan. Of all philosophy’s areas of focus, ethics is perhaps one of the most accessible, the way many are introduced to the discipline both in and out of school, and at various stages of life. During the conference, we will explore how to incorporate ethical perspectives into discussions that unfold in educational and other public spaces across all age groups. The conference aims to present a diverse set of perspectives on ethics education. Submissions from PK-12 educators, graduate and undergraduate students, faculty, administrators, and others interested in ethics education are welcome. Submissions on other topics in philosophy in schools and public philosophy will also be considered.

CALL FOR PRESENTATIONS:
We welcome proposals for conference presentations, workshops, and a poster session. Workshops using a community of inquiry model are especially welcome. Proposals, aside from workshop proposals, will be blind-reviewed. More information on the format and requirements for proposals can be found at: https://www.plato-philosophy.org/plato-conferences/

DEADLINES:
All proposals must be submitted through the PLATO website by December 1, 2019.
All proposal notifications will be emailed by January 31, 2020.
